"Where Are the Reapers?" was appropriately sung at this juncture, and then stopped forward Morality Inspector Archer.

Staff Capt. Mrs. Read drew tears from many eyes as she told of the plight and rescue of many little ones from prospective child soldiers.

"God Be with You Till We Meet Again" was sung with all the fervor inspired by some of the most pathetic recitals that have been heard in Terento for many a year.

Liberal was the monetary response from the church to the Red Cross and the Home-street church to the Rescue Work under the wings of the Blood and Fire warriors.

-D.O. Hawell and Wife Lending.

"Captain, I would like you to go to Adgetown for a week-end with me," said Dr. O.

"All right, sir. I would like to see the old battle-ground once more."

We arrived on Saturday morning, and were met by the Captain at the station, and put in the afternoon visiting old friends. The meeting at night was an Old Fashioned Free-and-Easy.

It seemed to enjoy themselves. Sunday as a day of blessing and victory. Three came for a deeper work of grace, one sister asking God to take her temper away, and to help her pray with her unsaved husband. She professed to get the victory. In the afternoon, the crowd to the front, and a crowd crowded inside, a real good meeting, and several holding up their hands to be prayed for. Mrs. Howell gave some Gospel truths, every person drinking them in. The night meeting was a time of blessing. Some real fighting was done, and the powers of hell were driven back by the

Liens, Hitch, Farnsworth, and others spoke. Mr. Susak, our Indian brother, sang and testified. He spoke in broken language of the white people. Capt. Hay said the number of people he used to see in the saloons of God's house was now away in the land of righteousness, and urged the young and old to give up sin and seek Christ. Capt. and Mrs. Mudge sang and spoke, as well as several others. The D. D. dealt out the
